I continue to share material from “Reconcilable Differences Connecting is a Disconnected World, written by Dawna Markova, Ph.D. and Angie McArthur.

Why? It’s a discovery, its content excites me, and I believe it speaks to us all.

FOUR DISCOVERIES FOR RECONCILING DIFFERENCES?

- 1 The way each of you COMMUNICATES most authentically.
Understanding this about each other will help you connect and develop rapport
- 2 The way each of you naturally UNDERSTANDS something. This discovery will help you to feel more energised, individually and together.
- 3 The way each of you LEARNS. This discovery will help you to better appreciate each other’s perspectives and what is important to each of you.
- 4 The way each of you TRUSTS. This discovery will increase your capacity to create meaning and a positive future between you.
