

POEM OF THE WEEK

OUR STORY, A COSMIC VIEW

My story, his story, her story,
Their story? Our story?
Not possible. They are all different.
Are they? Imagine there is a thing,
A state of Being termed absolute truth!

No matter the difference of opinion,
perception of causes and effects,
reasons and results, the question
"What happened" is reduced to an act or sequence of actions, the consequences of that act, or sequence of actions, or absence of. Act or don't act. It's all the same.

Do or do not. It's a decision, a choice, an action. A choice of not to notice, or be aware,
is a choice to embolden, enable, and encourage!

Feelings of guilt and emotions have consequences,
Are consequences? Should, shouldn't;
ought, oughtn't; did, didn't.
Our actions judge us. Our emotions
They are separate and complex.

A cauldron of contradictory, competing and calamitous concoction.
A cosmic view? Not a chance.
We're alone, collectively we form groups.
Seek to repeat what we have experienced;

Claim this as knowledge.
